Nurses, teachers, police officers, firefighters. They do some of the most important jobs in your community but some say they're having a hard time affording a place to live. "They all start at a low base salary, and a few of them exhaust their whole salary to afford to pay for rent or housing. We want to bring people here and we want them to know that we're going to assist them in finding housing that meets their needs," says Hillsborough County Commissioner Sandy Murman.

City issues final recommendation on Bay to Bay Blvd. resurfacing

Over recent months, the City of Tampa has been in close coordination with Hillsborough County to consider various alternatives that would improve safety for all users of the Bay-to-Bay Boulevard corridor. Hillsborough County is planning to resurface this roadway later this year from Dale Mabry Highway to Bayshore Boulevard.

IRONMAN expansion to create 70 jobs at Hillsborough-based headquarters

Governor Rick Scott announced that IRONMAN, a global endurance sports brand, will be expanding its Tampa headquarters and creating 70 new jobs. The company currently employs more than 160. The new positions will include a variety of positions including sales, marketing, human resources, operations, finance and information technology.

Will wave of women candidates prevail?

Although they're entering politics in record numbers — 575 women are running for U.S. House, Senate and governor seats alone — challenges remain. Women represent 25.3 percent of state legislators, 22.8 percent of statewide officeholders and 19.8 percent of Congress. Even the best outcomes would still mean women are underrepresented.

County helps revive aging industrial office buildings

A new Hillsborough County program encourages redevelopment to spur business growth in four targeted areas. The idea is to encourage reuse of existing properties, rather than develop businesses on land that might not have infrastructure such as roads, water lines, sewers, or electricity.
